DETAILED ACTION

Examiner's Response

1. In response to the application filed 11/20/2003, the application has been examined. The Examiner has considered the presentation of claims in view of the disclosure and the present state of the prior art. It is the Examiner's position that claims 1-20 are unpatentable for the reasons set forth in this Office action:

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter, which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claims 1 and 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 1 and 4-6 lacks structural support for the claimed method.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

6. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

7. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over USP 6,239,718 (Hoyt et al).

In claim 9, a data processing system in a signaling device for delivering codes to control multimedia devices, the data processing system comprising:

identifying means (5), responsive to receiving a signal from a remote control device (3), for identifying a sequence of commands corresponding to the signal, wherein sequence of commands contains a set of codes used to control a set of multimedia devices (11, 15, 17, 13) {col. 5, lines 38-50; col. 6, lines 26+}; and transmitting means (7) for transmitting the set of codes to the set of multimedia devices, wherein the set of codes causes a series of events to occur in the set of multimedia devices (11, 15, 17, 13) {col. 5, lines 56-65; col. 7, lines 19-25}.

Although Hoyt et al do not disclose expressly a “macro”, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to recognize that the “sequence of commands” of Hoyt et al is analogous to the claimed macro.

In claims 10 and 18, the set of multimedia devices includes at least one of television (17), stereo receiver, stereo amplifier, digital versatile disc player (13), satellite receiver (15), and computer {col. 6, lines 1-20}.

In claims 11 and 19, although Hoyt et al do not disclose “sequentially turns on the television (17), turns on the stereo receiver, waits for two seconds, and sets an input mode in the stereo receiver”, these series of events would have been just a matter of design choice in the system of Hoyt et al because these events can be easily programmed into the system of Hoyt et al {col. 6, lines 14-20}.

In claim 12, the transmitting comprises means transmitting a series of infra-red signals to transmit the set of codes {col. 5, lines 29-36; col. 6, lines 1-8}.

In claim 13, the transmitting means comprises means for transmitting a set of radio frequency signals {col. 5, lines 19-28}.

In claim 14, the data processing further comprising:

entering means (21), responsive to an upload signal, entering an upload mode {col. 5, lines 38-50};

receiving means (23) for receiving a second macro while in the upload mode {col. 6, lines 42-47}; and storing means (27) for storing the second macro, wherein the second macro includes a second set of codes {col. 6, lines 57-64}.

In claim 15, the upload signal is received from one of a computer or the remote control device (3).

In claim 16, the signaling device a relay unit since it is used to relay the sequence of commands transmitted from the remote control unit (3).

Claims 1-8 recites a method for practicing the system of claims 9-16 and therefore rejected for the same reasons.

Claim 17 recites the combination of claims 9 and 14 and therefore rejected for the same reasons.

Claim 20 recites the combination of claims 9, 14 and 16, and therefore rejected for the same reasons.
